

THOUSANDS SEE AVIATOR'S FALL

unable to start it again in time to rise above the wires just outside the enclosure.

Crowds Quickly Fled.
Ripping and tearing its way through all barricades the machine upset a soda water stand, caused hundreds to flee precipitately before its forward march and brought terror to the eyes of those who watched. Fear that humans had been crushed or mangled, conviction that the aviator had lost his life, and curiosity, carried a mass of humanity across the field to the scene of the accident.

As spectacular as was the tearing of wood and the rending of wire, more truly wonderful was the discovery that no one had been seriously hurt. Gray crawled from beneath the wreckage, and the boy who had been in the soda stand was taken quickly to the office, where his wound, a mere abrasion of the scalp, received medical attention.

Gray estimates that the damage to his aeroplane will amount to approximately $2,500. Both planes are gone, the rudder is a wreck, and there is really nothing left but the engine and motor.

Could Have Landed Safely.
"I could have landed safely, but I was afraid to take chances with those ball players on the field," he said.

Miss Jack Stearns, the young woman who flies with Gray during most of his exhibitions, and who is to be Mrs. Gray, was one of the first to reach the scene. A nurse, also among the injured, and who was sought by the surgeons, opened the way for Miss Stearns. It had been originally planned for her to make the flight.

The game was delayed, and but for the excellent work of the police there might have been a question as to whether or not a game could have been played.

But Miss Stearns was not worried over any disappointment which might have been felt by the more plighted of the crowd. She wanted to find Gray. Throwing back the mass of wreckage, the aviator was discovered, still seated in his car, with face set.

Wanted to Save the Pieces.
His first salutation was a warning to break no more of the machine than had already been destroyed by the impact. Joe Heuser, parkkeeper and owner of the soda water booth destroyed, was also there.

It is not known just how much time nor how much money will be needed to repair the damage. But those who were present will never forget the spectacle. The crowd divided as if by magic. The escape of the aviator and those over whom he flew was miraculous.

Gray, as soon as his aeroplane is repaired, will attempt a flight from Richmond to Washington. He is not depressed over his first accident after five years of successful flights, and is willing to brave the air once he can get his craft repaired.

BARHAM FOR POSTMASTER.

Congressman Watson Makes Known His Decision From Richmond.

Judge Watson at a late hour last night, after spending parts of two days in this city conferring with citizens about the several candidates for the postmastership and fully satisfying himself on the subject, announced that he would recommend R. P. Barham for the position. Judge Watson left for Richmond yesterday afternoon without stating who he would recommend, and made announcement of his decision from that city. In the following telegram to Mr. Barham: "R. P. Barham, New York: "As the choice of a considerable majority of the Democrats of Petersburg who have signified their wishes to me, as one I deem competent for the task, because of long party service and as an ex-Confederate soldier upon the expiration of General Bolling's term, I shall recommend you for appointment as postmaster of Petersburg."

"WALTER A. WATSON."

Judge Watson also telegraphed his decision to the other aspirants for the office, Robert G. Bass, William M. Martin, and O. W. Mattox. General Bolling's term does not expire until April of next year.

Mr. Barham is well known throughout the State. For many years he was the owner and editor of the Independent-Appal, and was a consistent and able advocate and defender of Democratic principles, rendering valuable service to the party. His recommendation for the office of postmaster has given general satisfaction and brought him many congratulations.

MONTAGUE RETIRES

General regret is expressed in the Richmond Light Infantry Blues Battalion at the resignation of Percy Montague, Jr., captain of Company C. It has been accepted, and he will no longer be connected with the service. Addressing his company after drill Thursday night, Captain Montague said he was unable to satisfactorily discharge his military duties. His men tried to convince him to the contrary, but he was immovable.

After the meeting the retiring officer was host to his company at lunch served in the gun room at the armory. Captain Montague has for a long time been considered one of the best officers in the service of the Virginia Volunteers. He displayed that necessary yet rare combination in a militia officer—efficiency coupled with leadership. He has seen long service, having been with the Blues since boyhood. His commission as captain dates from February 21, 1910.

Much interest was taken by Captain Montague in rifle practice. For several years past he has won the ancient silver medal, given annually to the best shot in the battalion, and he has attended the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, O., qualifying as an expert rifleman.

It is practically certain that Captain Montague will be succeeded by First

Send at Once for Free Trial Package.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callus, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way TIZ vanishes. Rub the corn hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ. Doesn't that sound good to you. Doesn't it? Then read this:

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you have sent me. To-day there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. I've never known anything like this. Hoover, Progress, N. C."

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. There are a good many counterfeits of TIZ now being made by manufacturers who think they can make a little money by fooling people once. Don't fall a victim. You'll have to get TIZ afterwards, and they know it, and you might as well get it the first time and save the money on counterfeits. TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, department and general stores at 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish. Money back if TIZ doesn't do all we say.
